

The left column opens the page and explains attention in a few plain lines so that the reader can follow the rest of the argument without any detours.

A new paragraph begins here and talks about softmax over the scores of every query and key pair in the sequence.

The right column continues after the left one and describes the feed-forward block that follows attention in each layer of the network, applied to every position alone.